Penne Praigg Plights Vows with Calvin Eble

The gown had a scalloped square neckline and short lace sleeves encrusted with pastel sequins. The bouffant skirt was caught with a large bow at the back, forming a bustle effect. A crescent lace and pearl headpiece held the full silk illusion veil. White orchids, lilies-of-the-valley and roses formed the bridal bouquet.

Miss Brenda Peck was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Joan Sullivan, Lynne Moore, Debbie Lee and Gale Doherty. All were gowned in aqua lace over white taffeta and each carried a bouquet of roses and carnations. Little Cindy Eble, in a white organza frock with an aqua sash, was the flower girl. The gown was designed with a modified mandarin neckline, three quarter sleeves and a bouffant skirt fashioned with a pouf back and falling into a chapel train. The beautiful gown was complemented by an imported illusion veil caught by a dainty rhinestone tiara. Completing the picture was her cascade bouquet of white roses interspersed with stephanotis and three sterling silver roses.

Little Kathy Jo Thomas was flower girl wearing a dainty frock of lavender nylon over taffeta. She carried a small basket of lavender chrysanthemums.

John Foote of Alhambra, a high school friend of the bridegroom, was best man. Seating the 350 wedding guests were Charles King of Santa Barbara, Mike Morr of San Marino, Jim Jones of Lomita and John Yzyrdruaga of Chino.

Mrs. Nancy Jo McMullin, a sorority sister of the bride, sang "Always" and "Because" at the beginning of the ceremony and "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt at the altar. The Rev. Clarence E. Spier, pastor of the Harbor City-Lomita Methodist Church, conducted the ceremony.

YOUR PROBLEMS

by Ann Landers

"Avoiding Moral Responsibilities"

Dear Ann: I work in a factory. My foreman is stealing merchandise by the case. I have seen him put the stuff in his car on three separate occasions. I'm not the only one who knows it. Several people in my department have made some comments. Nobody wants to say anything because they might get into trouble.

I'm sure the man is selling this merchandise. He bought a new car several months ago — one of the big, expensive makes.

My wife says to keep my mouth shut and mind my own business. I feel like a heel because this guy is robbing the company and I'm too chicken to report him. What would you do in my place? — L.M.

Dear L. M.: I'd go directly to the man and tell him you've seen him stealing merchandise for quite some time. Make it clear you don't want to report him but you will if he hauls out anything more.

I do not agree with your wife that it's none of your business. When you sit by and pretend not to see criminal practices you are avoiding your moral responsibility.

It's not enough to be FOR what is right you must be AGAINST what is wrong. And what's more, you ought to be willing to put your mouth up where your principles are.

Dear Ann Landers: Your answer to Worried, whose 83 year old grandma drove like a hot-rod, seemed weak. Why pass the buck to the family doctor to ground her. Let the state do it.

Many people don't know that almost every state has an agency that will re-examine the fitness of a person (young or old) to operate a motor vehicle.

When reckless drivers, suspected drunks, speeding teenagers or feeble old folks are spotted, the license number should be sent to the Secretary of State, driver's license division, with a report. The machinery will then be put in motion to interview the driver. The state will suspend or revoke the license if the need is indicated.

This is not snitching, it's a public service. People do not belong behind the wheel of a car when their presence on the road is a danger to others. — MARTIN L. OF MICHIGAN

Dear Ann Landers: I never knew a girl could get into so much trouble trying to do a good deed. Please help me out of this horrible mess. (Continued on Page 14)
